

Vidyo for ADA Compliance – Deaf Population

What are Your Needs?

- Is your organization required to meet ADA requirements?
- Does your business experience infrequent encounters with deaf individuals?
- Are you struggling to access ASL interpreters to ensure your business is ADA compliant?
- Does the normal operation of your business make it difficult to justify having onsite ASL interpreters?

Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), any state or local service, program or offering, any hospital, hotel, motel, place of public accommodation or business with more than 15 employees must provide effective means of communication for individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing. Often, the best means of communication is through American Sign Language (ASL) interpreters. However, ASL interpreters may not be needed frequently or for a long enough time to make it economically feasible to have a full-time interpreter onsite.

At Issue

The need for highly qualified ASL interpreters at public facilities such as police and fire stations, court houses, public utility offices or businesses such as hotels and motels

The need for qualified ASL interpreters for patients and caretakers in busy healthcare settings

The need for qualified ASL interpreters in educational settings, including K-12 schools, higher education institutions and libraries

The Vidyo Solution

ASL interpreters can work from their home or business location and deliver interpretation services with ease by using Vidyo over the Internet. A connection can be made instantly with a video relay interpreter, and services can be provided cost-effectively on a per-minute basis.

Interpretation services powered by Vidyo are especially useful in scenarios when a quick response is essential. A good example is healthcare settings in which a provider needs information immediately from a deaf patient in order to diagnose and treat the patient in a medical emergency. Instead of waiting for an onsite interpreter to arrive, the doctor or nurse can access an on-call interpreter within a few minutes over Vidyo.

With external ASL interpretation resources available over Vidyo, schools enable deaf students to participate productively in regular classes throughout the school day or across the campus without the time and expense of having an onsite interpreter.
